Norfolk.
"It is hoped that new evidence will enable the Navy to ascertain the cause of the loss," Moorer said.

The inquiry court was convened first on June 4. It has prepared a report, not yet released, which was understood to have made no specific judgment on what had happened to the submarine.

A day after the court was convened, Moorer told reporters the Scorpion and her crew were presumed lost.

The search, which began shortly after the Scorpion failed to show up at Norfolk, involved more than 40 ships and 6,000 men, as well as many patrol planes.

At first, the searchers ranged over the entire track, about 1,200 miles, from the Scorpion's last known position to Norfolk.

Crippling Cuts Forced on Pentagon

WASHINGTON AP — Hard-pressed Pentagon economists have been forced to make small but potent ally crippling cuts in the program to develop a vessel capable of rescuing submarines trapped at great depths.

Specialist say the $5-million cut that leaves $74 million in the Navy's "deep submergence" project for this year takes away money earmarked for unexpected problems that usually crop up during a development process.

"It makes it much more difficult to solve current problems," one official said, "it eliminates the 'elbow room' in the development program."

The new cut was made as Pentagon authorities sought to meet a congressional order to trim spending by $6 billion this year.

About a year ago, while preparing the fiscal 1969 budget, Defense Department officials denied the Navy some $90 million to complete the final four boats of a planned force of six special rescue subs designed to operate to a depth of nearly a mile.

Current rescue equipment, dating back more than a generation, is unable to assure rescue of submarine crews beyond 300 feet.

The original plan, announced more than two years ago, was to have a worldwide rescue system of six special subs by 1970. The budget squeeze has knocked that schedule off the track.

The first of the new class of rescue subs is now expected to be ready in 1971 and prospects for the final four boats were cloudy.

Nude TV Show Was Accident of Technician

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The man who gave this desert resort area a nude show via home television says he was confident at the time that he was the only viewer of the racy film.

Robert Allen Veatch, 25, of San Bernardino, was arrested Wednesday by police who quoted him as saying the showing was accidental and that he was "solely responsible."

The stag film was carried throughout the Coachella Valley early Sunday morning by cable television. Viewers tuned in after regular telecasting and saw nude men and women cavorting across their screens.

Station KPLM-TV's program director, Mike Rollins, told Police Chief Robert B. White that, to the best of his knowledge, Veatch, a control technician at the station, was looking at the film alone in the studio after hours.

Veatch believed, said Rollins, that he had cut off all cable transmission and had switched the film to a single TV set.

Instead, it was seen in the communities of Palm Springs, Palm Desert, Rancho Mirage and Indian Wells.

White said Veatch soon realized what had happened and quickly destroyed the videotape. The tape, White said, was Veatch's personal property. He said Veatch has been a part of the staff about two months.

Veatch was booked on suspicion of broadcasting obscene matter.

permitted to carry on an airplane repair business at the airport. The proposal was referred to the airport committee consisting of Clyde Fouse, Dr. Lester Sitzas and Bill Wray for study and development of a contract arrangement that would provide the best possible airport service.

The Board of Directors approved the removal of six trees which are not included in the present clearing contract, being slightly outside the clearing limits. The property owners had asked that the City remove these trees while the present clearing of right-of-way is in progress.

The Board of Directors discussed several recommendations that have been presented by the Citizens Advisory Committee, including a request that the City get into some kind of pigeon control program. The Board of Directors authorized the City Manager to set up some type of control, working through the recommendation of the State Health Dept., and the County Agent.

A request from the Walnut Street Church of Christ that the City build a sewer service line for the new church being built on the Rocky Mound Road was discussed. The Board of Directors would not agree to building the service line but authorized the City Manager to furnish the ditch digging for the line, which would be of some assistance to the church. In other action, the Board approved the payment of an ambulance charge in connection with the recent death of Alvin Prater, a Street Department employee who died of a heart attack while operating a City truck.

The United States recognizes it. Thieu had talked with reporters following a ceremony honoring South Vietnamese war dead. He told them: "I don't see any respect — response — from Hanoi."

Thieu said another stumbling block is Hanoi's insistence that the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front be treated as a separate delegation at any expanded peace conference. He said his government could not approve of this.

Expectations of a bombing halt were fueled by President Johnson's secret meeting early this week with on Creighton Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, and by statements from several officials of governments with troops in Vietnam.

But the White House and the State Department continued to maintain that enemy arms had told Johnson at their White House talks Tuesday that he could accept the consequences of a complete halt in the bombing of North Vietnam under present battlefield conditions.

Abraham declined to comment on the report, but members of his staff said privately they had received no indication his opposition to a bombing halt at this time had changed. These officials said they felt it unlikely that he had flatly accepted any bombing halt without receiving some assurances that the security of his forces would not be seriously jeopardized.

The talk of an imminent bombing halt was heightened by a report that Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's official spokesman had said he expected the United States to announce the halt "within several hours." Later the Japanese Foreign Ministry denied the spokesman had made such a statement.

The U.S. Command said Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots flew 126 missions over the North Wednesday, boosting the total for October to 3,615, the highest number for one month since July when 3,833 missions were flown. Pilots reported destroying or damaging 47 supply boats, more than 11 trucks, five bridges, five coastal defense and antiaircraft gun positions and several supply structures. Roads were reported cut in numerous places.

Over South Vietnam, Air Force B52 bombers dropped 1,800 tons of bombs on troop concentrations, base camps and storage areas east, west, and northwest of Saigon and in the Central Highlands.

In the ground war, North Vietnamese guns above the demilitarized zone shelled the headquarters of the U.S. 3rd Marine Division at Dong Ha and the U.S. Navy base at the mouth of the Cua Viet River. Three Americans were killed and 10 wounded at Dong Ha.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

DOWN WITH DOUBLE STANDARD, SHE SAYS
Dear Helen: I was asked in a nationwide survey if I would feel

"seriously hurt" if I learned my fiancé had "been around" quite a lot. I replied, "There wouldn't be a wedding."

I'm a girl who doesn't go for the double standard. My friends disagree with me. They think it's perfectly okay for a guy to get experience when and where he can, but they condemn a girl for the same actions. They say a fellow has a right to ask a girl if she's a virgin, but it's none of the girl's business what he has done.

Does a man have a childish idea that he gets more hurt to find his girl is unchaste, than she does to learn he has given his love to many before? His argument is that if she's "easy" she'll continue so after marriage. Do male chasers miraculously change to true husbands? I think not!

Maybe I'm crazy, but I think a guy shouldn't go the "bed to bored" route as a bachelor, if he wants his bride to be special only for him. Let him marry one of the swingers. I'll wait for the man who waits for me! — OUTDATED?

Dear Out: You may have a long wait. Why not modify your statement to, "I'll wait for an honorable guy who expects me to be likewise?" That's a single standard which makes the past unimportant. Right? — H.

Dear Helen: Before George married my mother he was real nice to me. He took us both out to dinner and bought me groovy records. He also helped me with my math.

But now that he is my stepfather, things have changed. He told Mom I was a spoiled brat and if she would let him take over he would straighten me out. I am an A student, have not interest in smoking, drinking, or going wild, and I try to help Mom. Anyway, he set down rules about everything from dating to homework to talking back. I can't breathe without breaking some of them. Punishment is rough.

Mom brings about how I have improved since George took over, and even tells her friends he HAS to whip me sometimes.

I don't think I have improved as a person. I just keep my mouth shut and go along with what they say because I am afraid of being punished. I'm full of hate inside.

Helen, please explain to parents that sometimes when kids argue they don't mean to be sassy, but are trying to stand up for what they think is right; that curfew should depend on where you're going, so you won't have to leave in the middle of a party or movie; that when you double date, and one girl must come home two hours before the others, she won't get asked again. . . . And she wouldn't go if she was asked, as it's too embarrassing. My mother used to understand these things. What's happened to her? — STEPCHILD

Dear S.C.: Your mother is trying to make her second marriage work. George is trying too, but if he doesn't cool the Big Father act, he may blow it.

A good rule for new step-parents: don't pull drastic changes even though your spouse seemingly approves. If they're unfair (as George's punishments appear to be) resentment soon replaces gratitude, and there goes the marriage!

Try one of those mother-daughter talks you used to have. It might open her eyes. — H.

Fur Hats Are 'Headliners'

Fur hats—white rabbit, lynx, blond mink and lightened lamb—are the "headliners" for winter fashion. They're fluffy, they're warm—but they get terribly dirty, and who can spare them long enough to have them dry-cleaned? The best way to keep a fur hat clean and wearable for every cold winter's day is to dry-clean it yourself with baby powder. Just dust absorbent baby powder on the fur, then gently brush it out with a soft brush. Out comes the dirt, and your fluffy protector is ready to wear.

Tax Revision Need Cited

OSCEOLA, Ark. (AP) — Bill Alexander, Democratic nominee for Congress from the 1st District, reiterated his stand on the need for tax revision here Tuesday.

He said the present $600 exemption on federal income taxes was "not in line with the times." He said that the cost of living had risen steadily without any change in the exemption rate.

"We should increase the exemption figure to $1,000," he said.

He said, though, that the exemption rate could not be raised as long as the cost of the Vietnam war remained as high as it is.

Volunteers, Buckeyes Selected

NEW YORK (AP)—Down to sea level again from 1½-mile altitude which makes for light-headedness we try to recoup from one of our costliest weeks. Despite a near-perfect record in the Midwest and Far West we stubbed our toe in the East and South for 38-19 and 667. The season's average remains, however, a respectable 760.

Ohio State 20, Michigan State 18. The Buckeyes find a new quarterback in Ron Maciejowski, the Spartans bruised by the Irish.

Tennessee 25, UCLA 14. The Volunteers still are bitter over the 1967 game that got away.

California 28, Washington 20. The Golden Bears, with one of their better teams, still settling many old scores.

Notre Dame 25, Navy 14. The Irish ordinarily might have a rout, but the Midshipmen at Navy play well in Philadelphia.

Purdue 38, Illinois 7. The Boilermakers will need Leroy Keyes for less than half the game.

Kansas 20, Colorado 18. Any team that can beat Oklahoma can make it tough for favored Kansas and Bobby Douglas.

Yale 33, Dartmouth 20. A nice day for tail-gating at New Haven but the beer turns sour on Dartmouth stomachs.

Penn State 35, Army 7. The Nittany Lions put a stopper on Lynn Moore's touchdown explosion.

Georgia Tech 24, Duke 14. The Engineers are jelling after an up-and-down beginning.

Louisiana State 10, Mississippi 0. It's Saturday night at Baton Rouge—enough said.

Texas Christian 23, Baylor 14. At this stage in the wild South-east take the home team. The game is at Fort Worth.

Texas 20, Southern Methodist 35. Darrell Royal and his board of strategy must have an answer for the amazing Jerry Lewis.

Stanford 21, Oregon State 17.

Bobcats Have Everything to Gain

By RALPH ROUFON
Star SportsWriter

With everything now to gain and nothing to lose, the Hope Bobcats try to get untracked tomorrow night against the fast-rising Camden Panthers, in a game which promises to be a good offensive battle.

After a week of the hardest practices of the season, the Bobcats should have fire in their eyes by game time. As usual, there are several key factors in Hope's winning or losing, but attitude will rank highest in this one.

Where the Bobcats have a two-game losing streak, Camden has won their last two contests by large scores. Hope should be ready to go, and the Panthers have already improved enough this season to be a threat even if they turn up flat.

Overall, Camden has a record evened out at 4-4. Among their victims are Warren (28-0), Crossett (16-0), Fordyce (18-0), and Camden Lincoln by a count of 40-12. Their victories have been impressive, but they have also looked good in defeat.

The Panthers' only embarrassment was a 33-0 shellacking at Magnolia, but they nearly upset Fairview before falling 20-6 and Arkadelphia barely beat them 14-13. Finally was a 13-7 loss to Malvern, the team attempting to dethrone the 4-AA champion Fairview Cardinals.

Head Coach George Burke expressed some optimism before the season began, but his offense has run much better with the addition of the Y-T offense, which Darrell Royall invented at Texas this fall. With the Y-T they have proceeded to roll up an average of 16.0 points per game, which is better than normal.

At quarterback this year is Bill Dedman, a 160-pound senior starting on offense for the first time. Dedman doesn't throw the ball much at all, and Camden didn't get a single completion last week. The short back is Tommy Watts, a 140-pound junior who was the quarterback most of the year last year.

A pleasant surprise has been the effectiveness of tailback Bill Jordan, another junior scaling only 130 pounds. He has run back several punts and kickoffs for long yardage, and he is a threat when Camden is on offense.

In the slotback position is the '67 leading ground gainer, Jesse Dorris, a senior. Dorris uses his 170 pounds to the best of his ability and is quite comparable to Hope's Rodney Jones in his running style.

The line is inexperienced and of only average weight, but they have rarely been overpowered and are scrappy and quick.

Tim Womack, a slight 130-pound soph, will line up at tight end and work on double-teaming blocks with weakside tackle Pat McGuire, another 10th grader at 155 pounds.

At weak guard is senior Tommy McCord, a 150-pound returning starter and a fine blocker. The bulwark of the front seven is center Randy Crowder, a tough senior at 180.

On the strong side at guard and tackle are Bill Epperson, another returnee at 150 pounds, and soph Bill Garner (190). Out at the slot end position is Randy Garner, a 170-pound junior and the team's best receiver.

Camden has tried to go two-plateau this year, and only Crowder and Dorris will go both ways very much. The Panthers on defense run a 4-4-3, with the extra linebacker being a free "rover". This can cut off a team's running game to the strong side, where they can load up with as many as four on the line.

They will shift over on Hope's slot formation, and the "nose-man" will actually be head up on the guards much of the time. That noseman is Joey Butler, a 155-pound junior who played quite a bit against Hope last season. Other members of the immediate front four are seniors Tony Lilly (160), Kenny Mann (165), and Greg Moore (175). Along with Butler, they will stunt quite a bit and raise havoc with the offensive line, rather than try to simply run over them.

The three linebackers will also

Alworth Best Pass Catcher in Football

NEW YORK (UPI)—Take it from Johnny Sample. When it comes to catching passes, nobody can beat Lance Alworth. Sample, the New York Jets' highly vocal cornerback, a veteran of 10 years play in both the NFL and college leagues, keeps a rating book on every receiver he opposes.

Sample rates his foes on a 0-5 basis in five different categories, and thus far only two players have achieved a perfect rating of 25. The two are Alworth of the AFL San Diego Chargers, and veteran Tommy McDonald, now clowning out a distinguished career with Cleveland of the NFL.

Alworth has caught at least one pass in each of the 75 professional games he has played in and only three men, among active players, lead him in total reception yardage. The three are McDonald, Bobby Mitchell of Washington and Don Maynard of the Jets, all of whom have had at least 10 years' experience compared to seven for Alworth.

Jim Stenerud, Kansas City's dead-end place kicker, holds a commanding lead in the individual scoring department with 83 points on 21 field goals and 20 conversions. Kicker Jim Turner of the Jets is second with 64 points, followed by Dennis Partridge of San Diego with 58.

frequently move around trying to outguess the opposing quarterbacks, though variable calls could hurt this. Around the middle most of the time will be Crowder and junior Steve Reddin (140), and they are in on many plays.

Bill Meek at 155 is the outside linebacker away from the strong side, and his responsibility is to back up the outsides and cover the short pass routes. On the other side in the rover spot is Calvin Johnson, a very fast sophomore at 6 ft. 2 in. and 180.

The secondary is vulnerable to the pass, and Hope could take advantage of this if Larry Massanelli is all right or if brother Ronny can be a good replacement. Dorris is at left half, and the other flank is manned by senior L. E. Lindsey, a 165-pound utility man who has played nearly every position in the book.

Back at safety is Doug Sutherland, a 140-pound senior who started sparingly last year.

And that's Camden, not as good on paper as their 4-4 record but still a threat.

For the Bobcats, several moves were made in the places of the missing and injured. In place of Jim Alford at linebacker will be Micky Allen, and they opened the noseman spot for Rodney Jones, the crunching tackler who has played in the middle throughout the past three years. In Alford's offensive tackle spot will be either Mike McQueen or Kenny Mullins.

Tonight the Bobkittens take the spotlight for their final ball game of 1968, as they try to make it a 6-1 season against the Fairview Cardinals in Fairview.

Kickoff time is set for 7:30 p.m., on the holy ground where the Magnolia-Fairview war will be consummated the following evening. Our Bobkittens have really put forth the effort this season for their first winning season in over six years, and this is one of their roughest opponents. It should be a close one, but the Hope boys want to win enough to pull it out.

Egad, friends, you're in for a special treat this week.

By popular request, I am turning over my forecasting chores to my football-wise nephews Alvin and Leander —hak-kaff!

And in true Hoople tradition the boys have some startling picks for you—um-kumph!

Since Alvin is the senior member of the duo, we will let him give his choices first. This is what he has to say:

"Here's one for you, Uncle Amos, that'll shake the whole state of Ohio. I, Alvin (The Wise) Hoople, predict the Michigan State Spartans will stay in high gear and topple undefeated Ohio State, 28-14, in the top Big Ten game.

"And here's another pip for you. Watch the Colorado Buffaloes knock the Kansas Jayhawks off their lofty perch, 19-13, Haw!"

Jove, Alvin, you are indeed a brave lad. I don't know what Leander can do to top those. Let's hear from him.

"Thanks, Uncle Bulgy—er—I mean, Amos, for givin' me a chance to pick against Alvin and also for the opportunity to make up to the readers for some of the bum selections you've been givin' 'em! Like last week, when you wouldn't listen to me when I picked Michigan hasn't won a game all year, will clip Texas Tech, 19-12."

Well, Leander, I must say you earned at least a draw with Alvin in the department of audacity. Your selections are equally as startling as his.

And there, dear readers, you have an insight into how the younger generation thinks these days—har-kumph.

Now go on with the forecast.

FAYETTEVILLE — When All-American Loyd Phillips roamed rival backfields for Arkansas (1964-66), his biggest supporter was younger brother Terry Don. "He can do things no one else can do to an offense," said Terry Don admiringly.

Now Loyd would be proud to see his brother in action. Although Terry Don carries his credentials modestly next to the nation's Outland Award winner of 1966, he is the unquestioned leader of this 1968 Razorback defense. With him in the lineup at tackle, the Porks have stopped some of the league's best runners inside. Without him, the Razorbacks are young and vulnerable. Right now—the concern is whether the Longview, Tex. junior can recover from a painful back ailment that has plagued his Razorback career. It was re-injured in the North Texas State game and his playing status is questionable for the Texas A&M game this Saturday. He could even be lost for two or three games—at a time when Arkansas' chances in the SWC race will be determined.

"He's done a great job for us in every way," says head coach Frank Broyles. "I know that his back has bothered him, but he's been the heart of our defensive line. He's graded as high as any lineman we've had in 10 years in several games this season. We'll be hurt without him," added Broyles.

Terry Don's 209-pounds compares with Loyd's 240 as a senior—but he has much of the same quickness that became Loyd's trademark. He may not punish the offensive line while searching for a quarterback the way Loyd did—but this younger Phillips' product is a tough man to move defensively.

"He stays home to meet the ball carrier," is the way line coach Charley Coffey puts it. "This is what gives us some stability in the line. And, he's a real leader too," said Coffey.

A lack of size may keep Terry Don from earning the pro-football attention accorded Loyd, but he wants to share one distinction with his brother. He wants to play on a championship team. He lettered on an 8-2 team two years ago, was sidelined during the '67 season and has another year to go.

Crank Keeps Up Criticism of Rockefeller

HARRISON, Ark. (AP) — Marion H. Crank, Democratic nominee for governor, Wednesday night continued his criticism of the way Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller has handled the state's finances.

Crank told a crowd of about 300 that he had the ability to put the state's financial house in order.

But, he said, "It's not going to be easy when you have to start out with nothing in the treasury." Crank said, however, he would not ask for a "big tax increase to cover up mistakes," offering efficient management instead.

Crank against accused Rockefeller of spending a $40 million surplus he said Rockefeller had when he took office.

Crank said the state will be broke at the end of this fiscal year. "This is the kind of reforms you have had," he said.

He said the Rockefeller administration has been the "most extravagant government this state has ever seen."

Mentioning penal reform, Crank said he "will not get progress in Arkansas with a shotgun."

"Two years ago the present governor appeared on TV with a big stack of books and said he had done his homework," Crank said. "A few days later he said he suddenly realized state government was complex and we now realize that we had a rich amateur taking over."

Crank said he could not match the campaign funds of Rockefeller, but said he did not believe Rockefeller "could buy the people of Arkansas."

Also speaking at the rally were Bill Wells, candidate for lieutenant governor; Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell and Mrs. Kelly Bryant, wife of the secretary of state.

HHH Camp Denies Land Was a Gift

NEW YORK (AP) — A spokesman for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says the Democratic presidential candidate paid $200 for lakeside property in Minnesota that the Chicago Tribune had charged he accepted as a gift.

In a statement Wednesday, Norman Sherman, Humphrey's press secretary, said Minneapolis dairyman Ray Ewald "sold six lots of unimproved pastureland at Lake Waverly" to the vice president in 1955.

The controversy arose after the Tribune published a story saying court house records in Wright County, Minn., showed Humphrey had "accepted six valuable lakeside lots" from Ewald, who was the target of an antitrust action.

The story described Ewald as a "financial angel" of the Democratic party and said the transfer of the property, which took place while Humphrey was a senator, was not recorded for two years.

Sherman's statement said: "In 1955, Ray Ewald, a Minneapolis dairyman, sold six lots of unimproved pastureland at Lake Waverly to the vice president with the understanding that he (Humphrey) would improve the property. This was part of 12 lots owned by Mr. Ewald."

"The land was unused and unimproved. On May 1, 1955, the assessed value of all 12 lots, including six improved lots not part of the sale, was $530. The vice president paid Mr. Ewald $200 as consideration for the property."

"Mr. Ewald, a Republican, was and is a personal and family friend of the vice president's, who was then a senator."

"The vice president was not involved in any way at any time in any antitrust act on involving Mr. Ewald."

Foe Declares Fulbright Has No Defense

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The race for one of Arkansas' seats in the U.S. Senate continued clicking along on all eight cylinders Wednesday."

Republican Charles T. Bernard of Earle took his campaign to Springdale and Sen. J. W. Fulbright, the Democratic incumbent, taped a television program in Little Rock.

Bernard said that Fulbright "has realized that he has lost his bid for re-election and is now shouting foul."

"He is not willing to defend his record in Congress," Bernard told a Springdale civic club. "He refused to debate by saying he doesn't have the time."

Bernard said Fulbright "can't defend that record, so he claims that it is being misinterpreted."

He said if Fulbright wants to defend his record "he should start by explaining to the people why he failed to vote against gun control."

"The senator also could tell us why he doesn't have the gall to be proud of America as he said last year in Hawaii," Bernard said.

"As Fulbright gets more desperate, he will probably start trying to smear my reputation," Bernard said. "This is a standard tactic used by desperate politicians."

Speaking later Wednesday at a fund-raising dinner in Springdale, Bernard criticized a statement he said Fulbright made last year at Conway. He said

Headquarters Confident of Crank Win

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Marion H. Crank meets Tuesday to crown his long tenure in state government with the big prize — the governor's office.

And his headquarters is confident that their "game plan" of picturing him as an able and experienced leader who will solve the state's problems will put Crank over the top.

Jack Oakes, Crank's campaign manager, said Crank has led Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller all the way and he believes the Democrat will win by 30,000 to 50,000 votes.

"The response to our campaign has been excellent," Oakes said. "There is no question that in the last four or five days, things have begun to crystallize."

Crank has served 18 years in the Arkansas House, rising to that chamber's most prestigious positions. His experience has been the theme of Crank's campaign.

The Republicans can't find anything wrong with Crank's qualifications so they have turned to other tactics, Oakes said.

"This entire campaign has been to discredit Marion personally," Oakes said. "I don't think it has been successful."

He said Rockefeller had sought to portray Crank as a man who can't be trusted.

Oakes said the governor may have made some voters "apprehensive" because Crank's children were on the state payroll during legislative sessions, but the senator said the "two-party system is an unfortunate developing illness."

On another topic, Fulbright said Texas oilman H. L. Hunt was "rather eccentric and has lost touch with the world."

Hunt recently said he was doing everything he could to bring about Fulbright's defeat in the general election.

Fulbright said he couldn't explain Hunt's remarks.

Asked why, up to his point, the Paris peace talks had failed to bring an end to the Vietnam war, Fulbright said it was because of the "stubbornness of some leaders... who are unwilling for a moment to allow that they have no always been correct." He did not elaborate and did not name anyone.

HOPE (ARK) STAR, Printed by OHset

on the whole he thinks Rockefeller has failed in his characterization of Crank.

Crank has attacked Rockefeller on several fronts, but his main line of criticism has been that the governor has been financially irresponsible, has caused a slowdown in the state's economic growth and has made a mess of his reform program, including penal reform.

He accuses Rockefeller of being a "jet set" governor who doesn't "understand what we in Arkansas want for our families and children."

He scores Rockefeller's call for a tax increase and a bond issue, saying, "I tell you, we will study the finances of this state and put things back in order before any tax increase is discussed. He won't need to borrow money until we first learn to manage what we have."

Rockefeller likes to point out that Crank was absent during the May special legislative session when the votes came up on the governor's tax increase package, which Rockefeller said was needed to bail the state out of financial problems created in the administration of Orval Faubus. The tax increase proposals were defeated.

ed. The 53-year-old Crank had figured prominently in speculation during the last several election years as a candidate for governor. He admits that he had given it some thought before this year. He defeated five others, including Mrs. Virginia Johnson in the run off, for the right to meet Rockefeller in the general election.

Crank, a native of Oklahoma whose family roots are in Arkansas, is a former school teacher and merchant at Foreman, where he now lives, who ran for the House at the request of friends. He won and has since served as speaker, chairman of the Legislative Council and majority leader.

He resigned his position as a vice president of the Foreman Cement Corp. to run for governor. It was his close association with Faubus plus his job that has lent weight to Rockefeller arguments that he is a member of the "old guard."

Foreman Cement is a subsidiary of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., whose president is W. R. "Witt" Stephens, a Faubus supporter.

Since his nomination, Crank has moved to unify the state Democratic party, shattered by Jim Johnson's defeat in 1966 at the hands of Rockefeller, the first Republican governor in Arkansas since Reconstruction.

Oakes claims that there now is broader representation on the Democratic State Committee. The new party chairman, Charles Matthews of North Little Rock, a progressive member of the 1967 General Assembly, has come to Crank's defense.

Matthews says Crank "didn't acquire his much deserved reputation for getting things done by dealing with tainted, ineffectual washouts."

Thinks Black America Has Lack of Faith

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Negroes see the United States as a lawless society which uses its police powers to oppress the black man, a prominent civil rights lawyer said today.

Robert L. Carter, recently resigned as general counsel of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said, "There is a widespread lack of faith in the integrity of the administration of justice at all levels as it impinges on Negroes."

"In testimony prepared for the President's commission on violence, Carter said the South has widely flouted school desegregation requirements, and educational apartheid is increasing in the North despite court decisions.

Negroes feel the laws for equal housing and equal employment are the ones least likely to be carried out, he added.

Not until the nation makes real its promises of equal opportunity and civil rights will respect for the law be restored, Carter said.

The NAACP lawyer added, "The all-but universal view of the Negro community is that it is the basic function of the police to keep blacks in line and to protect the white community against them."

"In all of its phases and manifestations, the law as it affects the black community appears to be another white tool of suppression—a way to maintain the status quo," Carter said.

Carter announced last week he is resigning Dec. 1 from the NAACP after a quarter of a century because of the firing of an associate counsel who wrote an article critical of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The violence commission, now in the final week of its regular hearings, is due to make its report by the end of the year.

A preliminary report by the commission staff said, "In the long run, we believe that the control of violence will depend, not merely upon the existence of more efficient and more powerful agencies of law enforcement, but upon the restoration of a genuine respect for the rule of law."

In other testimony prepared for today, Ronald Dworkin, law professor at Yale University, questioned whether civil disobedience should always be prosecuted, particularly when a person does no physical harm.

He told the commission it should "reject the simplistic rule that the law should always be enforced."

School Strike in Chicago Is Growing

By JOSEPH R. TYBOR
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — What began six weeks ago as a small boycott at Harrison High School on the West Side now threatens to become a serious crippling of Negro attendance at 27 of the city's 56 public high schools.

During the six weeks the issue has broadened from a demand for removal of a white teacher assigned to teach an Afro-American history course to a complete disavowal of the entire public school system.

However, Negro students and teachers are split—whether to work in or out of the system. So is the Chicago Board of Education—whether to retaliate with disciplinary measures against boycotting students or to meet their demands.

A special meeting of the school board with leaders of the boycott Wednesday night was hastily adjourned after a Negro militant threatened the board members with "an intensification of action that no one will be able to deal with."

"Students now are those who challenge those in authority," said James Harvey. They "are going to organize in mass movements to get their points across and demands met, or there will be no need for a school system."

Harvey is not a student but was identified by one of the boycott leaders at Harrison as an advisor to the Black Students for Defense, which has become the coordinator of boycott activities throughout the city.

Shortly after Negroes led the first boycott at Harrison, scattered boycotts occurred at several other predominantly Negro schools. On Monday, Oct. 7, the first citywide Negro boycott was called after students at several schools presented a list of demands to the school board.

These demands largely revolved around more Negro teachers and administrators, more courses in Afro-American history and more representation for Negro student groups.

Almost half the city's Negro enrollment of 62,000 was absent Oct. 7 and Oct. 14, the following Monday. Twenty-seven predominantly Negro schools were affected.

The students called for boycott every Monday until their demands are met. But last Monday attendance was near normal at most schools. Total

The portrait of Communist China's leader, right, illustrates the startling resemblance between the two men. Yama had to shave part of his head and practice a Chinese accent for the part.

Farm Bond Issue Planned for Prison

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — John Haley, chairman of the Board of Correction, said Wednesday that the board plans to propose a bond issue financed by farming and industrial operations at the state prisons to pay for a maximum security unit at the state penitentiary.

Haley said the board would present its plan to the Arkansas Legislative Council when the council hears the board's budgets Nov. 29.

Marion H. Crank, the Democratic nominee for governor, is to announce his plan for financing the maximum security unit tonight. He said he also could do it without using state funds.

Haley said the board would request approval of a $1 million bond issue. Half of the proceeds would be used to mechanize all farming operations at the prison. About $50,000 would be used to start the production of various manufacturing products. The rest would be used to build the maximum security unit and a reception and diagnostic center for incoming prisoners.

"Our theory is this," Haley said, "We will be able to effect savings in the farming operations by total mechanization. We will not have to continue to repair obsolete equipment and we would increase production through mechanization."

In addition, he said, manufacturing certain products at the prison, which the board has statutory authority to do now, will bring in considerable income.

He estimated that mechanization and prison industries would increase prison income by $125,000 or more a year. All of this could be applied toward paying off the bond issue and the bonds could be retired in 10 years or less, he said.

As for Crank's plan, Haley said, it could not avoid using state funds because even money collected by farming operations at the prison goes into the state treasury and is state funds.

enrollment in city schools is about 144,000.

Three groups of Negro teachers announced support of the boycotts.

The school board split was shown in a 6-5 vote last week to include boycott leaders at Wednesday's board meeting. Those dissenting called for strong disciplinary action against the boycotting students.

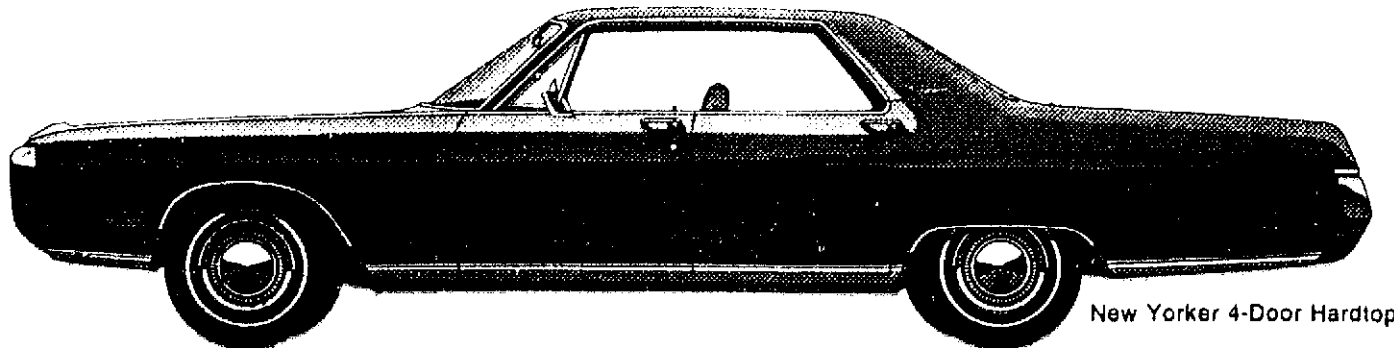

At the meeting 15 students besides the three teachers appeared before the board, and all criticized the board.

Either the "system that you puny-minded people perpetuate is going to have to be destroyed or rebuilt," one of the students told the board members.

Cosmonaut Lands Safely in Russia

By ANTHONY COLLINGS
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Cosmonaut Georgy Beregovoy and the Soviet space ship Soyuz 3 returned to earth today after nearly four days in orbit during which they set no records and apparently scored no breakthroughs for the Soviet space program.

Tass said the spaceship made a soft landing where it was supposed to in the Soviet Union but did not give the exact location.

Beregovoy "feels well," said the Soviet news agency, and was met by "friends and correspondents in the area where he landed."

"Cosmonaut Georgy Beregovoy successfully completed the program of scientific and technical research," Tass said.

The 47-year-old cosmonaut's flight was the first manned flight in 18 months for the Soviet Union, but it set no records and no technical breakthrough was announced.

Beregovoy was launched into space last Saturday morning and began a tandem flight around the earth in the wake of the unmanned spacecraft Soyuz 2, which had been launched the day before.

Before Soyuz 2 was brought down for a soft landing on Monday, Beregovoy made two approaches to the unmanned craft, but if he tried to link up, this was not announced.

A Soviet scientist writing in Pravda Monday said the purpose of Beregovoy's flight was to develop docking systems essential to the Soviet program of the moon and planets.

Soviet space scientists have twice joined and separated unmanned spaceships in orbit but have never linked up a manned craft with another spaceship, manned or unmanned. There had been speculation that the Russians would send up another cosmonaut to link up with Beregovoy, but this did not materialize.

The United States accomplished the first docking between manned and unmanned spaceships on March 16, 1966, and has repeated the feat several times. But the Americans also have not joined two manned spaceships.

Beregovoy's flight lasted one hour and nine minutes less than four days. He was launched at 11:34 a.m. Saturday, Moscow

Jets, Chiefs Allow Little From Running

NEW YORK (AP) — Running against the New York Jets and Kansas City Chiefs is getting their American Football League rivals nowhere fast.

It's no coincidence that the Jets and Chiefs, leaders in the AFL Eastern and Western divisions, respectively, also are 1-2 in defense against rushing.

New York has yielded 73.1 yards per game on the ground. The Chiefs' defensive unit has allowed 83.5 per contest.

The Houston Oilers are the time, and Tass said he came down "in the pre-set area of the Soviet Union" at 10:25 a.m. today.

over-all defensive leaders, having given up an average of 240.8 yards per game, including a passing low of 106.4. The Jets are right behind with a total yield of 241.9 per game.

San Diego continues to set the pace offensively. The Chargers have rolled up 415.7 yards per game in seven starts. Kansas City is the rushing leader, having ground out 183.3 yards per game.

A Message To All Democrats...

ROOM 219, HOTEL MARION. / P.O. BOX 3204
LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS 72203 / TELEPHONE FR 6-4561
October 28, 1968

Dear Fellow Democrat:

This letter is to ask your vote and support for the re-election of Governor Rockefeller.

Your first question may be to ask why, as a Democrat, you should be asked to support the Republican candidate and I think that is a fair question that deserves a fair answer.

I feel Governor Rockefeller is the only hope that we, as reform minded Democrats, have of re-capturing control of our own party. If the Old Guard machine can regain control of our state government, then it may be years before any of our reform minded young candidates can be elected.

Secondly, we have only to look at the reforms which Governor Rockefeller has set in motion, to see that he needs more time to complete the job. In the fields of insurance regulation, prisons, industrialization, welfare and education, to name but a few, Mr. Rockefeller has displayed outstanding leadership. He deserves another term to complete his program of progress.

Thirdly, I feel we can, in all good conscience, support Mr. Rockefeller, because it is in the best traditions of our state to grant an endorsement term to those leaders who have the best interest of Arkansas at heart and who are really trying to move our state forward. There can be no question about Mr. Rockefeller's honesty or motivation. He has always showed that his prime interest is the betterment of our state.

As good Democrats--and Arkansans--we can ask no more of any man.

Sincerely yours,
George R. Shankle

WR Declares Programs on Schedule

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Tuesday night that his "programs are on schedule" and asked for re-election to the traditional second term so he could finish the job he started.

In a television speech, Rockefeller reviewed progress of various agencies and programs, and told the television audience "you can be proud of the more efficient way your government is operating today."

The governor also denied a charge by his Democratic opponent, Marion H. Crank, that the state was standing still industrially.

"Millions — hundreds of millions of dollars — have been invested in the past two years in Arkansas more than 300 new and expanded plants," Rockefeller said.

"All you have to do is look around you—at the new homes, new cars, new opportunities—to feel the new Arkansas coming to life," he said.

He mentioned how his administration had halted illegal casino gambling, had run out the "fly-by-night insurance companies," and said he was confident that the recent shooting incident at Cummins Prison Farm would not "divert your attention from the great reform we've accomplished there."

In referring to his attempt to oust some members of the State Game and Fish Commission, Rockefeller said, "Truth and justice will prevail, and the Game and Fish Commission will one day be re-established to serve the people."

He noted a promise that when he took office there would be an end to using welfare recipients for political purposes.

"None of these citizens—happy or disgruntled—will receive a political letter from my administration or promising the impossible if they do support the administration," he said.

Rockefeller also said that neither has such a mailing been addressed to state employees. He called for approval of the proposed Amendment 53 in the general election. The amendment would remove age restrictions on education to allow school districts to have kindergartens and free adult education for persons older than 21.

At a rally in Fort Smith Tuesday night, Rockefeller berated the Democratic-dominated state legislature, saying, "They must have felt proud of themselves when they went home" after the May special session.

The governor has criticized the legislators several times for failing to pass any of his tax proposals to the special session.

In a light manner, the governor referred to recent advertisements by his opponent Marion H. Crank, which said the governor was planning a $300 million bond issue.

Rockefeller said he wished if Crank was going to quote him correctly. Rockefeller said the figure the advertisement mentioned was lower than the one he had mentioned. Crank later had said the figure should have been $500 million.

Arkansas does have a need that might require its use of credit," Rockefeller told the crowd of about 1,600. "We have had financial difficulties but like a new house or a new farm you want to expand and build on to, and the cost goes up as you get into an expanded situation."

Earlier Tuesday, in an address at a Little Rock civic club, Rockefeller said he believed the voters faced two choices next Tuesday—"whether er we are to move forward or whether we want to move backward."

He drew laughs from the crowd when he said if he was defeated "I'll get back to business, if necessary, at the farm ... and continue to make both ends meet."

Keeping Knives Keen

To assure dependable, cutting, carving and chopping, it pays to buy the best knives you can afford and take good care of them. Never let a knife soak or go in a dishwasher. Instead, wipe it off with a sudsy cloth immediately after use, then dry and store. Rub a little oil in wood handles to repel moisture and prevent cracks. Carbon steel blades darkened from use can be scoured with cleanser and steel wool.

Sex Flicks Still Sell Tix

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

Where does the impetus for the growing number of sex scenes in movies come from?

It comes, if you read between director Edward Dmytryk's words, from the studios. Obviously, they feel that sex—and violence, too—sells tickets.

Dmytryk, one of Hollywood's most respected veteran directors, is now preparing two films. The first is called "Act of Anger," and deals, among other things, with the subject of homosexual rape.

"I wasn't going to include the actual rape scene," Dmytryk says, "but, on demand, I've had to."

The demand, he says, came from studios he showed the script to. He says such a demand was not made by the studio where he finally made his deal—Warner Brothers—Seven Arts—but the scene is in.

Danny Lockin just wrapped up his first film assignment—he plays Barnaby in "Hello, Dolly." He put on some weight (he now weighs a hefty 135) and became a big Barbra Streisand fan, which is a lot for one picture.

Lockin on the controversial Miss Streisand: "She's a pro," he says. "She's only been in two films and she isn't a big star yet—although she acts like it in some ways."

"She made the studio give her that big trailer with all the antiques in it. She won't work until 10 in the morning, which is great. She let me keep in a couple of bits of our scenes together—she fought for me, to let me do the bits. If she doesn't think her make-up or costume is right, she'll do it over even if it means holding up the company for a few hours."

Capitol Records trotted out their new singing stars—John Stewart (who used to be a third of the Kingston Trio) and Buffy Ford—at a luncheon, and they sing beautifully together. . . . Stewart says they'll only sing his songs, but I hope that with maturity will come a less selfish attitude, because they would do standards so well. . . . All the comedians in the world were at the party for Don Rickles' first ABC show. . . . Don Adams (the two Dons are best friends) and Danny Thomas, Kaye Ballard, Phyllis Diller, Pat Henry—they all showed up to wish Rickles a happy new career. . . . Laugh-In writer Jack Riley says a coming trend will be two-platoon television, starting with Judd for the Offense. . . . The party to kick-off The Good Guys (Herb Edelman and Bob Denver) was in the same room where producer Leonard Stern had the party for Get Smart. . . . I asked Stern if he did it for luck. . . . "No," he said, "because we also had the party for Dickens and Fenster in this same room."

Shop Discriminatingly

The teen-ager who sets out on a shopping expedition can sidestep the common pitfalls if she heeds these hints: Decide what you really need. Weed out articles you haven't worn once in the past year. Are you equipped for school, rain, snow, sun, informal and dress-up dates and special activities? Put first things first and know what you're looking for when you shop. Build up bargain resistance and don't buy out of desperation. Be a discriminating shopper, take your time, look around and compare.

'Little Man' Gets Night in Court

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There were about 60 people in the courtroom. A man with a cast on his neck. A Negro woman with her children. Old men in coveralls, young men in Nehru jackets. They sat in silence, eyes fixed forward to the bench.

"All rise," intoned the clerk of the court. "Well," somebody whispered, "he a come de judge."

The judge, Sam Rosenberg, 64, entered smiling for another evening of what may be the most earthy, yet practical, judicial activity in the land—night court.

Four times a week in New York (and other large cities) night court comes to order for what Judge Rosenberg calls "Giving the little man his say." Boothblacks, housewives, taxi drivers—anybody with a civil complaint—are invited to seek the court's swift, binding judgment.

For $2.91, the cost of a summons, a man can sue anybody he wishes for up to $300. He needs no lawyer, no education.

Night court is simple on purpose. It begins at 6:30 because that's when the working man is available.

The only regulations are: Be quiet, be attentive, be quick.

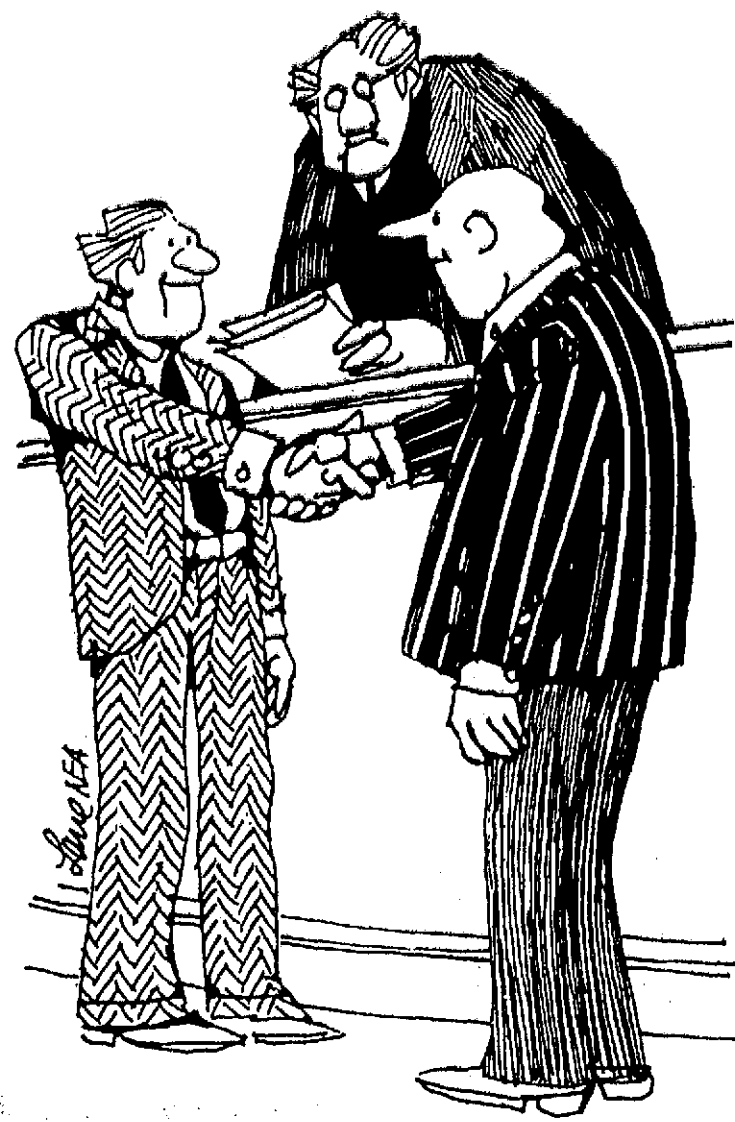

"Step up, step up," Judge Rosenberg told the evening's principals. "We've got a lot of nice people here tonight, and they all want to get back home."

The evening passed slowly. A Chinese-American wanted to sue a Manhattan shirt shop but couldn't speak English. A grouchy defendant complained he was missing his television. A woman brought a charge against her doctor. A grocer said his latest supply of wholesale meat included live cockroaches.

There were a few laughs. A man in the audience got up and loudly asked where the lavatory was. Told, he ran out of the room.

There were a few tears. One man wiped his eyes as he told the judge how he'd worked all his life and had never been in court before.

There were moments of pandemonium. One plaintiff accused a defendant of "attacking me in the court hallway." The defendant countered by yelling, "No, he attacked me!" Somebody in the audience took up the plaintiff's side. Debates erupted. And the court officer raced around pushing people into their seats. Through it all, in the rear of the court, a tailor and a miffed customer who accused him of cheating sat in absolute silence, waiting. They had been waiting for two months.

Their argument had started small, grew big. They had argued, shouted, finally threatened. Their issue grew until both men demanded satisfaction. Each swore he was right in the matter. And the judge would settle it once and for all.

Another case. Another. Finally, the tailor and his customer were called.

"Who signed the complaint?" the judge asked, as the men approached.

"I did," the customer said. The men stood side by side in front of the bench. They looked up. They looked small. The judge and the room engulfed them.

The judge read the charge and shook his head. He noted the customer was suing for "poor tailoring" on a pair of trousers. He noted the tailor had refused to do the pants over. He further noted that all the customer wanted was to give the trousers back in return for the money he had paid.

"Well?" the judge asked, looking down.

The two men mumbled a few defenses. They glanced about. The tailor shrugged. The customer admitted it really wasn't much of an argument.

"Well?" the judge repeated. The tailor took a few dollars from his wallet. "Here," he said to his customer. The customer pulled the pants out of a sack. "Here," he replied.

The judge nodded and smiled. The tailor smiled. Everybody smiled. It took exactly three minutes and two "wells" to settle a dispute that had been festering for months. Justice was done. Case closed.

"O.K., let's get on," Judge Sam Rosenberg, shuffling through a stack of papers. "We've still got a lot of nice people waiting for their say."

Canadian Coinage

The first major redesign of Canadian coinage in 30 years commemorated the country's 100th anniversary as a confederated nation. The wildlife motifs on the coins, such as the wildcat on the 25-cent piece symbolizing independence, reflect the character and spirit of the Canadian people.

Why did the present Attorney turn his back on the ministers?

He did just that. On Sept. 13, 1968, he agreed to let the ministers choose the third member of county election commissions. But three days later he turned his back on the ministers and nominated his own list of well-known members of the Old Guard to represent the Republican party at the polls.

Nixon Ahead in State, New Poll Shows

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Glen Jermstad, head of Richard M. Nixon's presidential campaign in Arkansas, said Tuesday a new poll showed that Nixon was ahead of the other presidential candidates in the state.

Jermstad said the poll gave Nixon 35.5 per cent of the vote, third party candidate George C. Wallace 34.4 and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey 26.9, with 3.2 per cent undecided.

Jermstad declined to name the pollster, but said it was an in-state "association" that had been accurate in forecasting Arkansas elections. He said the pollster was not hired by the Republicans or associated with the Nixon campaign.

These figures differed from a Republican poll that Jermstad said Monday showed Wallace in the lead by at least five per cent with Humphrey a "poor" third.

And, also Monday, Sid McMath, an official in Humphrey's Arkansas campaign, said a Democratic poll showed Humphrey in the lead with 35 per cent of the vote, Wallace with 30 per cent and Nixon with 24 per cent with 11 per cent undecided.

Walter Carruth of Texas, a farmer who heads Wallace's Arkansas campaign, said Tuesday that all indications are that Wallace will get more than 50 per cent of the vote in the state.

FOR CONVENTION

Editor The Star: Tuesday we Arkansas voters will vote for or against the calling of a Constitutional Revision Convention. This was made possible through the cooperation of Governor Rockefeller and the Democratic Legislature of which Marion Crank was House majority leader.

Some contend we will be voting blindly for a new constitution, incurring a heavy expense, raising taxes, etc. This is not true.

If approved on Nov. 5 the 100 delegates elected by our people will draft a proposed new constitution to replace our 1874 present constitution. In 1970 our voters would vote to adopt or reject what these 100 delegates propose.

Believing that we are living in changing times and in the progressiveness of Arkansas voters and their intelligence, my wife and I shall vote For the Calling of a Constitutional Revision Convention.

Asks Nuclear Effects Probe on Lake

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) — An examination of what effects a proposed nuclear energy generator will have on nearby Lake Dardanelle was asked for Wednesday by two spokesmen for conservation interests.

Dr. Howard Suzuki of Little Rock and Dr. Joe F. Nix of Arkadelphia made the request at an Atomic Energy Commission Safety and Licensing Board hearing.

Suzuki and Nix said the need for the facility is not questioned, but said fish and other living organisms in the lake might suffer since the generator plant would discharge into the lake heated water at the rate of 1,700 cubic feet per second.

The AEC already has said the proposed Arkansas Power & Light Co. facility meets federal safety requirements. AP&L said the unit is being designed "to rigid codes and standards to assure reliable safe operation without adverse effect from any release on the environment."

Misquoted Says Prosecutor in G&F Deal

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Prosecutor Richard B. Adkisson of Little Rock said Wednesday he was misquoted when he expressed an opinion on the state Game and Fish Commission case.

In a letter to Col. Ralph Scott, director of the State Police, Adkisson said there were sufficient actions as reported to support an investigation of bribery in connection with allegations that someone solicited a contract with the commission.

First reports of Adkisson's letter quoted him as saying there was "sufficient evidence to support a charge of bribery." He subsequently told newsmen that use of the word "evidence" was a misquote.

Adkisson said he had turned over to Scott everything he had received. He was asked to investigate the issue by the Arkansas Legislative Council.

He said he had not reached a determination of who should be charged in the case. "Who did it is something else," he said. "That's what we're trying to find out."

Adkisson was asked to investigate after G&F Director Hugh Hackler said he and a commissioner received telephone calls from an anonymous person who solicited a $12,000 contract with the commission.

Hackler said the caller purported to represent Odell Pollard, chairman of the state Republican party. Pollard said he was not involved.

Pollard said, when asked about Adkisson's letter to Scott, "I'm delighted that Mr. Adkisson is going into the matter and I'll cooperate with him 100 per cent because, although I don't feel that Mr. Hackler and Mr. Farris got a telephone call from anybody, nevertheless I want it investigated because it involves me."

"I will contact Mr. Adkisson and advise him that he can contact me at his convenience and get any information he needs from me," Pollard said.

Convinced N. Vietnam to Carry on War

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gen. Curtis E. LeMay said Wednesday that despite reports of progress in the Paris peace talks he is convinced North Vietnam intends to carry on the war against South Vietnam.

"I can see no meaningful hope for peace at this stage of the game," the vice presidential candidate on George C. Wallace's third-party ticket said at a fund-raising dinner.

LeMay told 150 persons at a $25-per-plate dinner that North Vietnam is sending supplies and ammunition into South Vietnam in greater amounts than ever.

Since the bombing north of the 19th parallel stopped, he said, the North Vietnamese have repaired nearly all bridges and roads and have greatly improved their supply routes leading south.

"Where it used to take 100 days for a shipment to go from the border of Red China to the border of South Vietnam," he said, "it now takes only six to eight days."

LeMay said the North Vietnamese forces were crushed after mounting three offensives this year and would have been unable to continue if the United States forces were permitted to pursue them into Laos and Cambodia.

Now they have been reinforced and re-equipped, he said, and U.S. intelligence experts are anticipating new attacks at any time.

When asked how a military solution to the war could be found, LeMay said:

"The solution is very easy,

Bryant Says Calls To Pakis Were For Sake of Friendship

By CLIFF MCINTYRE
Democrat Staff Writer
Secretary of State Kelly Bryant told the Democrat this week that he had placed long distance telephone calls at state expense to a well-known Hot Springs gambling stamp holder because "he's been my friend for 30 years."

The calls were placed to Jack Pakis on April 5, 1967; May 15, 1967; March 24, 1967; September 29, 1966, and Aug. 31, 1966. The Internal Revenue Service

The Internal Revenue Service listed Pakis as one of the owners of coin operated gaming device stamps for the Bridge Street Club in January of this year. The Bridge Street Club was one of four gambling casinos raided by the Arkansas State Police early Thursday morning.

Pakis also has an interest in the Southern Amusement Co., the New Southern Amusement Co., and the Yellow Cab Co. of Hot Springs, all of which were on the IRS list of coin operated gaming device stamp holders in January.

Bryant pointed out that his office had nothing to do with enforcement of gambling laws in Hot Springs and he saw nothing wrong in his friendship with Pakis.

The secretary of state said he had seen Pakis' father

COMMITTEE FOR GOOD GOVERNMENT

Box 411
Little Rock, Arkansas 72203

Dear Friend:

The committee whose name you see on this letterhead invites your participation in our cause for good government. Our specific purpose is to see that a change is made in the office of Secretary of State.

The clipping from the Arkansas Democrat of August 20, 1967, speaks for itself. It shows the great need for a change in the office of Secretary of State. We think you will agree there is no room for gambling friendships in public office at any level.

The present Secretary of State has revealed himself as a friend of gamblers. This is an intolerable situation to find in a state constitutional office. We who are organizing this committee feel so strongly about it that we are writing to ask your participation and support in an effort to elect former State Police Director Lynn Davis as Secretary of State. We hope you will support Lynn Davis and ask your friends to vote for him. Also, we ask for your contribution to help in this campaign to elect this outstanding man who has proven himself as an honest, dedicated person interested in clean government.

Meanwhile, if you can contribute to this effort, make your check payable to Committee for Good Government and mail it to Box 411, Little Rock, Arkansas 72203.

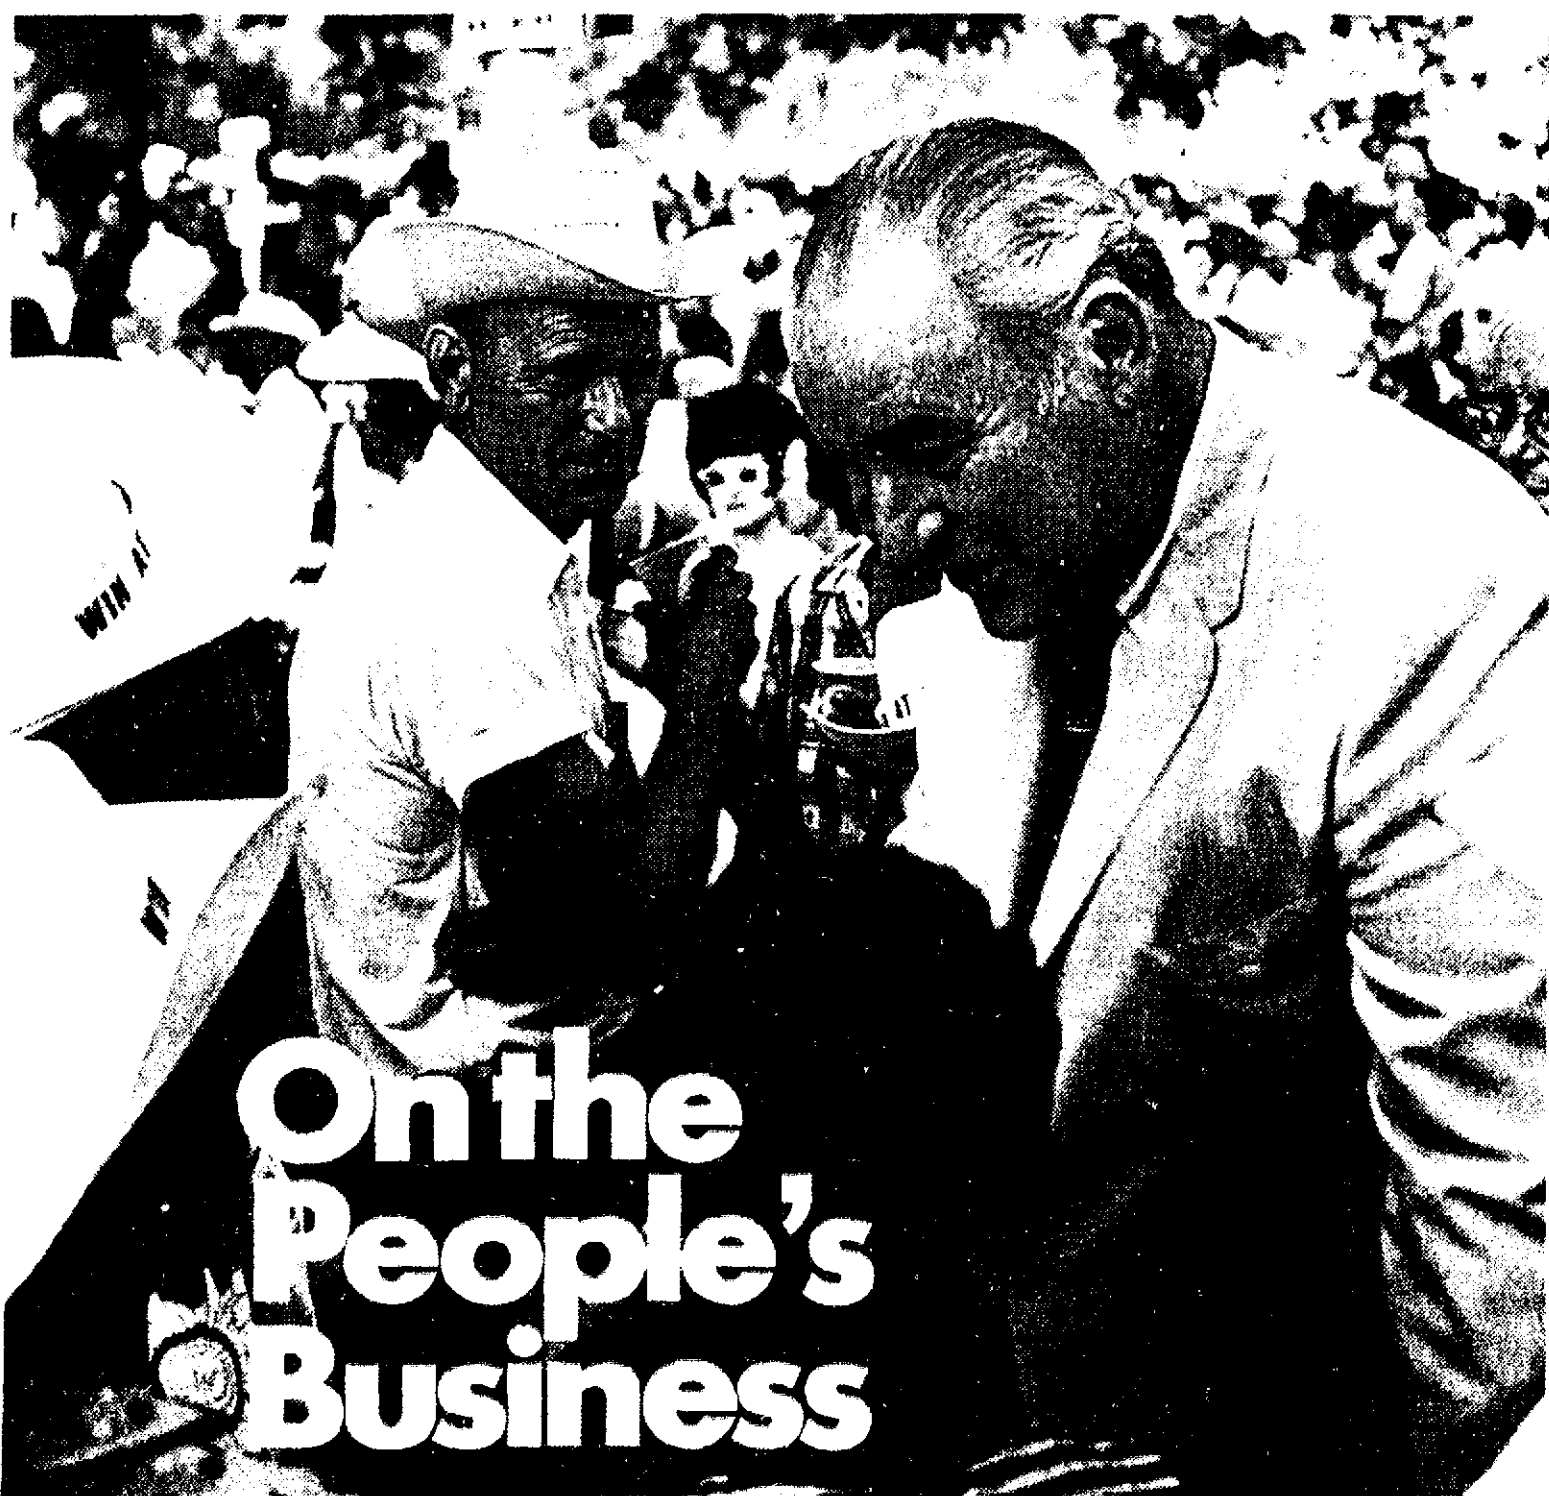

Yours for Good Government,

Here is another example of fortune favoring the brave in the Bridge Olympiad. The brave man was Charles Monk of Belgium who jumped to four hearts after his partner gave him a single raise. Fortune usually requires skill as well as bravery, before it bestows its favors.

Monk won the diamond lead with his ace and ruffed a diamond. Then he played a club from dummy. East ducked and West's king took South's jack. A spade was returned and won by dummy's ace. Monk decided that he could not afford to lead a trump yet and he played a second club. East won the trick with his ace and led the queen of hearts. Monk won with the king and was home free.

He ruffed another diamond in dummy, ruffed back to his hand with a spade, and led his last diamond. West discarded a club and Monk ruffed with dummy's last trump. He reentered his hand by ruffing another spade, played his ace of trumps and conceded a trick to West's jack.

Looks easy when you see how it was done. At the other table South bid three hearts only. This was just as well because he timed the hand badly and only made nine tricks.

He cashed the ace of hearts and then ruffed a diamond. The club play came next and after East ducked Eby Polak, who sat West, came up with a book play to hold South to nine tricks.

Polak led his jack of trumps. This play gave up a trump trick but Polak's generosity was far more apparent than real. He gave up a trump trick but left South with two diamonds to ruff and only the high 10 of trump to use for this purpose.

Of course, South could still ruff one diamond with dummy's 10 but that would give back Polak's trump trick.

Toss Meat Balls With Salad!

For this stick-to-the-ribs salad, meat balls are chilled with sliced zucchini in a garlic touched marinade. Just before it's time to serve, you add coarsely chopped western iceberg lettuce and toss gently with the meat ball mixture, tomato wedges and onion rings. This party-size recipe may easily be cut in half for a family meal.

Meat Ball-Vegetable Salad

- | | |
|---|---------------------------------|
| 1 head western iceberg lettuce | 1/4 cup cider vinegar |
| 3/4 lb. ground beef | 1 clove garlic, minced |
| 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt | 1 large tomato, cut into wedges |
| 1/2 teaspoon seasoned pepper | 3/4 cup onion rings |
| 1/2 cup corn oil | |
| 1 lb. thinly sliced zucchini or crookneck squash (about 1 1/2 cups) | |

Core, rinse and drain lettuce; chill in lettuce crisper or plastic bag. Combine beef, garlic salt and seasoned pepper; form into 24 small balls. Heat oil in skillet; add meat balls and cook until browned and done as you like them. Carefully transfer meat balls to bowl. Add zucchini, vinegar and garlic to skillet, mixing with drippings from bottom of pan; heat slightly, then pour over meat balls. Chill, turning occasionally to coat. Just before serving, coarsely chop enough lettuce to measure 6 cups; refrigerate remainder for use another time. Add chopped lettuce to meat ball mixture along with tomato and onion. Toss gently.

Orange Treats For Young Grads

Fresh-frozen Florida orange juice concentrate makes a wonderfully delicious base for youthful graduation party fare. The pure, natural concentrate is an economical, convenient beverage ingredient, and makes a tasty, colorful sundae topping.

Orange Soda

- 1 can (6 ounces) frozen Florida orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
- Ginger ale
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream

Spoon 2 tablespoons of the undiluted orange concentrate into six tall glasses. Pour in a small amount ginger ale; stir to blend. Spoon or scoop ice cream into each glass; fill to top with ginger ale. Serve immediately. YIELD: 6 servings.

Quick Orange Ice Cream Sauce

- 1 can (6 ounces) frozen Florida orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
- 1 1/2 cups light corn syrup

Blend undiluted orange concentrate and corn syrup until smooth. Serve over ice cream. YIELD: 2 1/2 cups.

Tropical Soda

- 2 cans (6 ounces each) frozen Florida orange juice concentrate
- 1 1/2 cups mixed diced fruit (fresh, frozen or canned)
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream

Reconstitute orange concentrate according to label directions. Spoon 1/4 cup of the fruit into six 12-ounce glasses. Spoon or scoop ice cream into each glass; fill to top with orange juice. Garnish each serving with mint. YIELD: 6 servings.

A Waterproof Beauty Too

CRYSTAL LAKE, ILL. — As our nation changes in pace with its restless, growing population, long accepted patterns in the home disappear from the family scene. No longer is Pop the jack-of-all-trades and minor repair jobs or alterations are not postponed "until your father gets home." Industry has found the young, enterprising homemaker well able to handle these right on the spot.

Manufacturers have found today's needs and desires must be geared to an economy that recognizes the principal dispenser of the family dollar. In many cases, she also performs the tasks normally left to males with her new free time from household chores, possible by modern appliances and household aids. Projects like changing a foyer, bedroom, kitchen, laundry or family room, a houseboat, mobile home or cottage are simply performed in leisure time constantly being increased by wife-saving devices.

Therion is a new product being welcomed into the lively family circle. It can reduce upset and soften sound created by active youngsters. Its new high tack self-adhesive back sticks to any surface, combines the washability of ceramic, durability of vinyl, the beauty of good grain, leather, tweeds, brocades and damasks. Therion is also insulating, is flexible, has acoustical properties and is flame-resistant. Its waterproof adhesive, core and facing is especially great around the home's most pesky spots, sink, tub or shower.

No dropcloth is needed and Mrs. Young America needs no special tools for economical installation at less than $4 for a six-foot square section. A simple wiping with soap and water will eliminate marking from that interesting lipstick a curious youngster found in Mom's purse. This alone can put back an indulgent parent's smile when a "lick and a promise" swipe from a washcloth can restore lustrous Therion finish.

The Choice of Tiles

If you are choosing bathroom tiles, etc., it is a good idea to stick to neutral colors like gray or white so you can change the colors of the room with the seasons or your mood. If your room already has tiles, you can work around it in the same way. If you have pink, for instance, you can use dark green to cool it in summer and mix oranges and pinks in your accessories to warm it in winter.

'Ironside' Has a Soft Spot for Paralyzed Veterans

NEW YORK—(NEA)—When Raymond Burr was Perry Mason, he was so associated with law that he often spoke before gatherings of lawyers.

Now he is Ironside, the crippled detective on the popular NBC-TV series. Once again he is so wrapped up in his role that (a) people are surprised to see him up and walking about, and (b) he is now associated with the Paralyzed Veterans of America.

"Do you know that of all the veteran's hospitals in the United States," he asks "only seven have facilities to handle spinal cord cases? All the veteran's hospitals have had budgetary cutbacks and they are getting more cases every day. The cutback was arbitrary, too. If a hospital didn't have many spinal cord cases on the day the cutback was decided, no one took into consideration the fact that 25 cases might arrive the next day.

"Many paraplegics need what they call a water mattress. They cost $675 each. One hospital had eight of these mattresses and 16 patients, so it became a question of which eight would get the mattresses."

Burr, a very concerned man who gives a great deal of himself while still managing to maintain his own privacy, doesn't take an unfair situation lightly. He is planning a trip to Washington which started out to be, he says, "a social lunch, but..." and he trails off, thinking about how he is going to make points.

If you have ever seen Stanley Myron Handelman perform, you don't have to be told who he is. Who can forget a man named Stanley Myron Handelman?

However, if you haven't seen him, in his many appearances with Merv Griffin or on The Dean Martin Show, this is to inform you he's a wispy, waspish, slight young man who wears a cap, thick horn-rimmed glasses and carries an umbrella on sunny days.

His name is real.

"I thought of changing it because I wanted a name everyone could remember," he says. "So I decided on Sheldon Lewis Engelbert. But Stanley Myron Handelman was already on my driver's license, and to take a test again just for Sheldon Lewis Engelbert was too big a chance. People call me Myron, because by the time they get to Handelman, they have already forgotten Stanley."

He's a native of Brooklyn currently making his home in Los Angeles because he could not find a place to live in Brooklyn Heights.

He's in show business because he couldn't earn a living at anything else. And he has tried working variously as a messenger boy (he got lost) and a shipping clerk. (Says Stanley, or Myron, "They'd yell, 'Have you seen the big broom?' and I'd yell, 'Where's it playing?'")

He has also been an athletic director ("I told how a guy broke his leg playing volleyball and no one wanted to participate"), a real estate salesman, a Good Humor salesman (on the beach) and a salesman for a commercial launderer ("Do you know morgues use commercial laundries?").

His first job in show business was at a Catskill resort. "During the day I was a waiter and bus boy," he says. "Between lunch, and supper, a life guard and, on weekends, I was in the band. I got fired because after the show they caught me going to town and not mingling. I was supposed to mingle until midnight. So I decided to specialize in mingling. But it was when I was a messenger and I got lost because I fell asleep on the BMT that I really decided on show business.

"Once you know you can't be a messenger, you have to be an entertainer."

Airborne 'Cookie' Calms Vietnam-Bound GIs With Charm, Chatter

VIETNAM-BOUND LEATHERNECKS board a commercial jet, complete with smiling hostesses, at the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station near San Diego. Flights like these are a far cry from the cramped troop transports of an earlier day.

says. "A lot of them ask me to read to them from their Bibles."

"The ones coming home are different. She says they are tired, almost in shock, and they are consequently quiet and subdued. They can't believe they're going home."

"They don't make passes at her—even those who haven't seen what they call a round-eyed girl in months. They stare at her (she's tall and blonde and worth a stare) and they whistle."

"But they keep their speech in check," she says. "They 'Yes, ma'am' me to death. They're so young—mostly 18 or 19."

Once, in Saigon, things were "pretty sticky" because they were expecting a Viet Cong offensive. The girls were told to stay on the plane. Cookie was on duty at the door when five official-looking Vietnamese walked over and motioned to her to come down. She was scared, but she climbed down the stairs.

"All they wanted was gum," she says. "So now I always bring a lot of gum with me. They see me coming and they say, 'Here comes the gum lady.'"

The Army gives each girl two identification cards, with the rank of second lieutenant. That's so, if they're captured, they will be treated as officers.

They receive the standard over-water airline pay. Cookie has heard that one airline pays its girls combat pay, but hers doesn't.

Basically, the flights are the same as in the United States. The only real difference is that the food is provided by the Army, and they don't serve alcoholic beverages.

Variety Meat Makes Savory, Unusual Stew

In a stew about stew because you've used all the familiar combos?

There's no need to give up because there's probably one you haven't tried. This one is made with kidneys, of which any variety will serve the purpose. Onions and carrots are the vegetables. Lemon juice adds a piquant note and it's most attractive served on rice.

Beef kidney is the largest, claims Reba Staggs, meat authority with the National Live Stock and Meat Board, weighing approximately one pound. Veal kidneys weigh about three-fourths of a pound while pork comes in at one-fourth and lamb at one-eighth.

Kidney Stew

2 pounds kidneys
1 cup water
2 beef bouillon cubes
2 large onions, sliced
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
4 carrots, sliced
1/2 cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons flour
Cooked rice

Remove tubes from kidneys and cut into 1-inch pieces. Add water, bouillon cubes, onions and seasonings. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1 1/2 hours. Add carrots and continue cooking until meat is tender. Add lemon juice, then thicken with flour mixed with water to form a smooth paste. Serve in a ring of cooked rice. 8 to 10 servings.

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—Once a week Cookie Severin puts on her pretty pink uniform with the little pom-pom hat and goes off to war.

It's a strange war, this Vietnam thing. Our side even has hostesses.

This came about when the government began chartering commercial aircraft to take troops to Vietnam and bring them back again. The airplanes came fully equipped—including the stewardesses—and they're still there.

Cookie, who flies for Continental Airlines, volunteered for the Vietnam flights.

She takes off with her other crew members from Los Angeles and flies to an Army or Marine Corps Air Station in California, or Travis in Fairfield, Calif., or Norton in San Bernardino or El Toro near San Diego or even as far away as McGuire in New Jersey—and loads up with 165 soldiers or Marines. They fly to Hawaii, lay over, fly on to either Okinawa or the Philippines for refueling, then fly into one of several bases in Vietnam.

On the way back, Cookie and her plane bring 165 returning servicemen home.

"I enjoy it," Cookie says. "It's a very personal thing with the girls—they either like it or don't like it. I find it a lot nicer than the same domestic route—I used to fly LA-Chicago—because that can become routine."

"With this, no two trips are ever the same. You learn to expect the unexpected."

Some things, though, have become routine. Cookie—her real name is Ellen Marie and she comes from Salem, Ore.—has learned to expect several marriage proposals on the way over. So far, none of the boys coming home has proposed.

She has also learned to look very interested when they show her pictures of their wives or sweethearts or mothers. And to listen avidly when it is night and the lights are out and some of them can't sleep and want to talk.

"I've often had fellows break down and cry," she

Legal Sale of Liquor: Not a Moral Issue But a Question of Justice in Taxation

When your editor acquired The Star the first of 1929 America was on the eve of liquidating the National Prohibition experiment — accomplished soon after Roosevelt became President in 1933.

Conditions were bad in Hope — countless bootleggers in the city and five or six of them doing business around the site of Hope High School.

What misguided preachers had called "a moral question" when advocating Prohibition back in 1920 had by 1929 become an intolerable problem in law enforcement.

The "bone-dry" states fell one by one — including the landmark case of Mississippi which, once it had reached a decision, went all the way and legalized the sale of mixed drinks.

Local option laws in Arkansas permit the sale of bottled goods through privately-owned package stores and the general sale of beer, where a county votes favorably — and Hempstead county will be voting on this issue in the general election next Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Local conditions were bad in 1929. They are still bad. Within the last year or two a number of Hope High School students were expelled for trafficking in liquor on the actual school property. And empty whisky bottles and beer cans are seen all over town — evidence of a universal illegal traffic.

The trouble is: There are no outlets for legal sales — therefore no one whom you can bring to account. With a legal sale system such as Hempstead county had from 1936 to 1946 a package-store owner or a seller of beer operates under public license. If a violation occurs he risks losing his license — and he's out of business.

This is the control factor behind legal sales — the other factor is tax justice.

From a tax standpoint Hempstead county's present "dry" status is absurd and humiliating.

In 1946 we voted legal sales out — but we continue to get our pro-rata county share of liquor and beer taxes collected in Texarkana and other "wet" areas. It's as humiliating as thinking you are a self-supporting citizen and then waking up to the discovery that someone has you down in his book as being "on relief."

If you don't know how the tax system works I'll spell it out for you. Liquor and beer taxes collected in "wet" areas are deposited in the State General Fund. Quarterly turnbacks, including the liquor and beer contribution, are made from this fund to the 75 counties — irrespective as to whether the individual counties are "wet" or "dry."

So when you vote "dry" it hasn't cost your county a dime. If it did, there wouldn't be a corporal's guard in the "dry" column on Election Day. As it is, you're in a cozy spot — with Texarkana playing your nursemaid and footing a substantial part of the bill for educating your children. . . a duty that rightly belongs at home.

And finally, A "dry" county has the practical effect of encouraging moonshine production of untaxed liquor. Liquor is a luxury that deserves to be taxed vigorously for the support of the public schools. We have no business tolerating a system that encourages tax-exemption of liquor when the public is being saddled with higher taxes on everything else.

How can you justify exemption of liquor from tax at a time when we are taxing the poor 3 per cent on food and medicine and clothing?

Are you a Christian or a Philistine?

You can answer that on Nov. 5

Details Are Important

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In political campaigns, details are important.

The big limousine used by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was waiting at Philadelphia's International Airport Tuesday afternoon when the Democratic presidential nominee flew in from Allentown.

On the back seat lay Humphrey's gray topcoat, neatly pressed. On the collar was pinned a sheet of paper on which was written, "There's a note inside the pocket, Mrs. H."

Humphrey Would Pay Students

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey proposed today paying students and giving them academic credit for political and governmental work but he had to rally supporters to shout out student hecklers.

Speaking before several thousand students at an outdoor rally at Fairleigh Dickinson University, Humphrey was forced to shout over chants of "Dump the Hump" and "You're a hypocrite."

After ignoring the hecklers for several minutes, he finally said, "I ask the great majority of those who respectfully listen to me to show now that you mean business — to drown out those that shout."

"We want Humphrey," the majority of the crowd began to thunder.

The heckling chants came amidst a speech in which the Democratic presidential candidate expressed sympathy with student demands.

Soviets Find Invasion to Be Costly

WASHINGTON AP — It cost the Soviet Union half a billion dollars to invade Czechoslovakia, U. S. officials believe, and the expense of occupation is going to drive the price of intervention even higher.

Officials said the $500 million figure is an educated guess that represents only the cost of the preparation and the actual invasion itself last Aug. 21.

Until it is clear how many Soviet troops are going to stay in Czechoslovakia and how long, officials say it will be impossible to put a price tag on the overall venture.

Experts also think Soviet agricultural production was hurt when the Russians and their Warsaw Pact allies rolled across Czech frontiers to put an end to the political liberalism of the Prague government.

Nixon First to Cast a Ballot

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon beat all his opponents to the polls today — by casting an absentee ballot.

The Republican presidential candidate, here for a nationally televised rally after his first big crowd flop of the campaign in Cleveland, Ohio, marked his ballot in the living room of his Fifth Avenue apartment.

Asked by a newsman how he was voting, Nixon said: "Well, of course, that's confidential information. But I don't mind if you speculate."

The candidate had to mark two separate ballots and place them in the mail. Voting with him were his wife, Pat, and their 22-year-old daughter, Patricia. The daughter, better known as Tricia, was voting for the first time.

Nixon said he was voting absentee because he'll be flying from Los Angeles to New York on election day and might not get back here before the polls close.

He also expressed hope that, by publicizing absentee balloting, he might encourage others who will be away from their voting residences on Nov. 5, to cast absentee ballots before it's too late.

Oregon Poll

PRINEVILLE, Ore. (AP) — Students at Crook County High School favored Richard M. Nixon over Hubert H. Humphrey by 238 to 147 in the school's traditional straw poll. George C. Wallace got 34 votes.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Since publication of a specimen of the official ballot Oct. 29 The Star has been questioned on the listing of Marvin Griffin as the nominee for vice-president on George Wallace's American party ticket. Griffin's name was the one on file when the ballot listings closed at the Secretary of State's office in Little Rock — although the actual nominee now is Gen. Curtis LeMay. The ballot is correct as printed — verified by Donal Parker, one of Hempstead county's election commissioners, on a check with Secretary of State Kelly Bryant.

Says Wallace Has 55 Per Cent

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Walter Carruth of Lexa, head of George Wallace's presidential campaign in Arkansas, said Wednesday that a survey he made this week showed Wallace with at least 55 per cent of the vote in every county.

Carruth said the Democrats and Republicans had announced polls showing their party's candidates ahead in the state out of "political expediency and desperation."

He said he had "total confidence" that his figures are right.

AIDC Charges Labor Ad Malicious

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Industrial Development Commission said Wednesday a labor group's ads against the commission's record under Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller were "malicious and irresponsible."

The ads say the AIDC is costing working people millions of dollars each year. It contends industrial development has reached "a new low."

The AIDC said industrial development had progressed satisfactorily despite the threatened loss of tax-exempt status for municipal bonds by the federal government, plus the handicap created by high interest rates.

Three Rockefeller appointees and an appointee of former Gov. Orval E. Faubus, plus the ex-officio commission member, condemned the labor advertisements in the commission resolution.

Bloodmobile Signup for Friday

The last three groups to work at the advance donor sign-up center will be as follows, Friday morning women of the Walnut Street Church of Christ and Mr. Frazier graciously consented to open the office on Saturday morning to permit another half day of securing donors. The women of Garrett Memorial Baptist Church will serve until noon Saturday.

Ninety five per cent of blood used is needed in emergencies. That's why we need blood on hand says Bill Cross. The walking blood bank formerly in use is no longer practical because of certain legal aspects that have developed. Hasty cross matching has brought about complications that have resulted in hospitals and doctors being sued by patients. Neither hospitals nor doctors will operate under these conditions.

That's why it is extremely important that 300 people in Hempstead give blood over the two day period so we can have a supply of "safe" blood available when we need it. Sign up by Saturday noon, give Monday or Tuesday. This may be our last chance to save the blood program.

Lawmaker Did Not Violate Privilege

HARRISON, Ark. (AP) — Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., Wednesday revealed a letter from the Post Office Department's deputy general counsel that ruled that Hammerschmidt had not misused his congressional mailing privileges.

Hardy Croxton, the Democratic nominee who is trying to unseat the 3rd District congressman, had charged a newsletter brochure mailed by Hammerschmidt to his constituents was campaign literature and not frankable.

Hammerschmidt said Wednesday in a newsletter that he had asked the Post Office Department for a legal opinion in the matter. Harvey H. Hunnah, deputy general counsel stated in the ruling: "It is the opinion of this office that the brochure is properly frankable."

Croxton, while campaigning Wednesday, called Hammerschmidt "a threat to Arkansas influence in Congress."

It is a "general feeling" that contests for seats in the House of Representatives and Senate are going to be close races around the nation Croxton said, indicating that Republican control of the Senate "would mean the ousting of Sen. J. W. Fulbright and John L. McClellan, both Democrats from Arkansas, from their committee chairmanships and much of their special influence in Congress."

Demos Hold Lead in House Races

By DICK BARNES

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON AP — Democrats hold a narrow lead in races for the House of Representatives. But as election day nears, the potential lineup for any House election of president becomes more muddled.

A state-by-state Associated Press survey shows Democrats ahead in 231 districts — 13 more than needed to control the 435-member House. Republicans lead in 180 districts and 24 are rated tossup on the evaluations made a week before voting.

Democrats control the present House 245-187 with three seats vacant.

The survey also turned up at least 85 candidates with a good chance of winning who say if the presidential election goes to the House. They would support a popular vote for winner for president even if he isn't their party's candidate.

The New House would inherit if no candidate receives 270 or more votes in the electoral college, whose votes are cast Dec. 16 and counted Jan. 6. If the election goes to the House each state, regardless of size, would cast one vote.

Translating survey results into control of state delegations leaves each of the three presidential candidates well short of the 26 state votes he would need to win in the House.

If House candidates who now lead are elected, Republican Richard M. Nixon apparently would get the votes of 17 states, Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey 12 and third-party candidate George C. Wallace 1 Alabama.

Votes of Hawaii, Kansas and Nevada would go to whoever wins the popular vote in that state. Montana would be unable to vote because of a deadlock delegation. Sixteen other states are question marks as of now. Tossup races leave party control of some states in doubt and in many there are candidates who say they might vote for other than their party's nominee.

Some House candidates say they would back the presidential candidate who won the national popular vote. A petition advocating this position was signed by 29 Democratic congressmen and 25 Republicans. But now there is some question whether it remains in effect since it did not get heavier support.

Big Liquor Still Found, One Arrested

Officers yesterday found a moonshine liquor still in operation about 10 miles southwest of Hope, arrested one man and seized 64 gallons of moonshine run off yesterday morning.

Deputy Sheriff Herbert Griffin said the still had two copper pots of 350 and 250 gallon capacity and 1,300 barrels of mash.

Arrested at the scene was Edgar Allan Beeson, about 21, of Hope Rt. 1. He recently moved to the area from Oklahoma.

Taking part in the raid were Officer Griffin, federal and state officers and State Trooper Wallace Martin.

Policeman Shoots Actor in Chest

LOS ANGELES (AP) A policeman says he shot actor Lance Fuller in the chest when Fuller attacked him Wednesday with a three-foot iron pipe.

Fuller, 32, was taken to the University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center where he was reported in "fairly good" condition today after surgery.

Officer Thomas Blaire was treated for a broken right hand. Blaire said that when he tried to stop Fuller from hitting parked cars with the pipe, Fuller attacked him, knocking a nightstick from his hand. The officer said Fuller yelled, "I am Jesus Christ I am God!"

As Blaire fell to the pavement, he fired his shot, he said.

In Spite of Worldwide Speculation There Is No Peace Agreement

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Amid worldwide speculation that the United States is about to stop the bombing of North Vietnam, President Nguyen Van Thieu told his army today "when we are near to a new step of true and guaranteed peace" the struggle is more difficult and fiercer.

Thieu did not attempt to explain this new step, but he had told reporters earlier that North Vietnam had not agreed to U.S. terms for a bombing halt and "we cannot decide to halt the bombing" unless there was some sign of reciprocity from Hanoi.

In a five-minute, taped television address to government troops, Thieu said he was "determined to win over all obstacles and pressure to success" and added: "I believe in your strong support. I need your victories in the battlefield."

Correspondent Wilfred Burchett as saying that the Viet Cong has ordered a de-escalation of fighting in South Vietnam in expectation of a U.S. bombing halt.

Burchett, who often reflects Hanoi's views, said the North Vietnamese are reacting guardedly to rumors of a bombing halt but judge that there is a possibility it could happen before next Tuesday's presidential election.

Burchett expressed belief the war will continue after a bombing halt and said the Viet Cong intends to continue fighting until

Thinks Crank Tactics Are Unfortunate

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — John L. Ward, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's campaign director, said Wednesday there is "an unfortunate implication" to an operation being conducted from the headquarters of Marion H. Crank, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

Ward said he understood that J. W. Benafield, mayor of England and secretary of the state Democratic party, has been contacting mayors in the state urging them to sign an advertisement on behalf of Crank.

Ward said the mayors are being asked to call Crank's headquarters collect if they are willing for their names to appear on the political advertisement.

"He (Benafield) seems to be suggesting that if the cities want to get any consideration from Mr. Crank, in the event he is elected, they had better get 'on the line' at this time," Ward said.

Ward said Arkansas cities have gotten a larger turnback under the Rockefeller administration than under any prior one.

Parts of Atom Sub Found at 10,000'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy announced today that portions of the lost nuclear submarine Scorpion have been located, more than 10,000 feet deep in the Atlantic.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, announced that "objects identified as portions of the hull of the submarine USS Scorpion have been located about 400 miles southwest of the Azores in more than 10,000 feet of water."

The discovery, reported by a Navy oceanographic research ship Wednesday night, culminates a search of more than five months since the atomic powered submarine disappeared with a crew of 99 officers and men en route from the Mediterranean Sea to Norfolk, Va.

The Scorpion last was heard from by radio on May 21 when it was about 250 miles south of the Azores.

Although there have been periodic reports that the general location of the remains of the Scorpion was known, Moorer's announcement was the first word that the resting place had been found.

The 10,000-plus foot depth where the hull pieces were located is far below the "crush depth" of the submarine, which was reported able to operate only as far down as about 1,200 feet.

The research ship Mizar reported that the Scorpion's location "has been confirmed by means of remotely controlled underwater" photography," Moorer's announcement said.

The Mizar and another research vessel, the Bowditch, using underwater sensors and cameras, have for months been scanning the ocean bottom in the general area where the find was made Wednesday.

Last July, this was called a "highly suspect" area. The Navy said the Mizar is remaining on the scene "in an attempt to locate and photograph additional portions of the Scorpion's hull."

After that, the Navy said, the research vessel will return to port and photographs will be flown to Washington and Norfolk for a detailed analysis.

"Present information is considered fragmentary and consists of on-scene interpretation of initial photography," the Navy said.

In light of the discovery, a seven-man Navy court of inquiry will be reconvened at Atlantic Fleet headquarters in

Enemy Hits Saigon With Rockets

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong gunners launched their first rocket attack in more than a month on Saigon tonight, firing at least seven rounds into various parts of the city on the eve of South Vietnam's National Day celebration.

First reports said at least two persons were killed and four wounded as the rockets slammed into the capital, striking mainly in quiet residential areas.

A U.S. Military Command spokesman said, however, that "there probably will be a lot more casualties."

The dead were reported to be children, 4 and 10, killed when one of the rockets, believed to be of the 122-mm variety, landed near a school.

As if to emphasize that the war is still on, the enemy blasted Saigon with seven rockets, killing at least two persons and wounding four.

Most fell in residential areas and a U.S. military spokesman said "there probably will be a lot more casualties."

Some rockets fell about seven blocks from Thieu's Independence Palace. The attacks had been expected because this is the eve of South Vietnam's National Day celebration. The enemy fired mortars into the palace grounds last year on National Day eve.

In a residential area about seven blocks from President Nguyen Van Thieu's Independence Palace, and about 300 feet from the headquarters of the capital military district.

Within the next 40 minutes, two more hit, one in the same areas as the first and the other near Cholon, the city's large Chinese district.

The military command said its preliminary information was that two were killed and four wounded in the explosion near Cholon.

Right-of-Way Reviewed by City Board

The Board of Directors at the meeting Tuesday night reviewed the progress being made in acquiring the additional right-of-way, needed for the 6th Street improvements. Horace Samuels who has been acquiring the right-of-way, reported that final settlement had been made on all except eight pieces of the property that will be required. The Board reviewed the offers that had been for these properties and agreed that the offers, based on current appraisals were all that the City should voluntarily pay for these properties. Mr. Samuels was asked to make a final effort in each case and if unable to make a settlement, turn the properties over to the City Attorney who would proceed in condemnation proceedings.

Robert Gladney who is presently operating the airport was present with a request for a renewal of his lease on the airport properties. Several local airplane operators were present in the interest of Mr. Gladney continuing as operator of the airport. Mr. Pete Martin, a licensed aircraft mechanic, was present to discuss terms upon which he might be
